Foreword: From 1867 to 1966, Charlotte County, with its county boundaries, was an electoral district or riding in itself. In 1966, changes came with the formation of the “Carlton-Charlotte” district which included Charlotte County, Carlton County and parts of Saint John County (parish of Musquash) and York County (parishes of Canterbury, McAdam, Manners Sutton and North Lake). In 1996, Carlton County was split into two ridings, “Tobique-Mactaquac” and “Charlotte”. The newly formed “Charlotte” riding not only included Charlotte County and parts of Carlton County but also parts of Saint John County, York County, Queens County, Kings County and Sudbury County. In 1998, the riding name was changed its name to “New Brunswick Southwest”. Election boundaries and names were once again altered in 2003 as Charlotte County became part of the “St. Croix-Belleisle” riding. After the 2004 election, an amendment was made to change the riding name from “St. Croix-Belleisle” to “New Brunswick Southwest”.

Today, “New Brunswick Southwest” includes the following: the County of Charlotte; part of the County of Saint John comprised of the Parish of Musquash; part of the County of Kings comprised of the parishes of Greenwich, Kars, Springfield and Studholm; part of the Parish of Westfield lying northerly and westerly of the Saint John River; and the Town of Grand Bay-Westfield; part of the County of Queens comprised of: the parishes of Cambridge, Gagetown, Hampstead, Johnston, Petersville and Wickham; the villages of Cambridge-Narrows and Gagetown; part of the County of Sunbury comprised of: the parishes of Gladstone and Blissville; the villages of Tracy and Frederickton Junction; and part of the County of York comprised of: the parishes of Dumfries, Kingsclear, Manners Sutton, McAdam, New Maryland and Prince William; the villages of Harvey and McAdam; Kingsclear Indian Reserve No. 6.

2. Provincial Election Results – MLAs

In 1785, elections were held for the first provincial assembly. All males of full age (21) who had been in New Brunswick more than 3 months had the right to vote. For the first hundred years, political parties as they are known today did not exist. This may be difficult for us to understand today, since we are used to voting for a particular party, often regardless of the particular individual running in our riding. For many years, electors seemed to vote based on the candidates personal inclinations, such as religion, place of birth, social class, drinking habits and family ties. The only specific divisions that seemed to exist was between the "government" and the "opposition". It is not until 1935 that party lines and affiliations became stable. Announced platforms were not an integral part of the process. Candidates could run in more than one constituency during an election. Up until 1830, Catholics could not vote in the province of New Brunswick. After this year, it was possible to vote after swearing allegiance to the King and his Protestant heirs. Catholics who were not willing to swear in allegiance to the King and his Protestant heirs were not allowed to vote. Since French Canadians were usually not land owners and were mostly Catholics, they were more often than not excluded from the voting process. The secret ballot has also evolved over the years. For many years, one voted by voicing out a choice of candidate to the poll clerk who wrote the name down in a small book. It was not until 1855, with the introduction of the secret ballot, that voting becomes a confidential act.

New Brunswick women won the right to vote provincially in 1919, and 1934, women won the right to be elected to provincial office. In 1963, Native Indians were allowed to vote. Until the reforms of 1967, it was necessary to be a land owner to vote municipally and provincially in the province of New Brunswick. People who did not own land could pay a poll tax and vote. As of 1966, age and residency become the only criteria for voting in New Brunswick municipal elections. The 1970 election was the first New Brunswick provincial election contested by the New Democratic Party, though they did not win any seats.

The 1974 election was the first election which saw candidates contest single member ridings; previous elections had each county as an electoral district electing a varying number of members based on their respective populations. In Charlotte County, four distinct ridings were create (St. Stephen-Milltown, Charlotte Centre, Charlotte Fundy, Charlotte West) from the former single riding of "Charlotte".

3. Municipal Mayors

Below is a list of Mayors of the various municipalities of Charlotte County. This list give the name of the Mayor with the date elected to office in brackets. This date does not include sequential elections following in which the given mayor retained their office.

In the 1800s, St. Stephen and Milltown were separate communities. In 1871, the community of Milltown incorporated. A few years later, St. Stephen followed with incorporation. For over 100 year the two towns operated independently but were very much connected with one another. The towns were also very much connected to the town of Calais, which was located across the river, and international border, in the state of Maine. St. Stephen and Milltown amalgamated on October 1, 1973 and became known as "St. Stephen Milltown". However the municipality adopted a simplified version when in 1977 the community became known simply as "The town of St. Stephen".
